On the twelfth week of summer vacation school finally started, saved me from myself, kept me out of therapy, sent me joyous dancing, gave me a flipping break, caused spontaneous napping, sang happy songs, loaded up the kids, threw them out the car, sped away real fast, laughed hysterical laughter, thank goodness for school starting pre-Labor Day!

This was an actual summer vacation with professional nutcases. Do not try this at home or even under supervision of adults. Not recommended for those with high blood pressure, weak heart, or nervous disorder. No kids were hurt in the implementing of this insane summer schedule but they were extremely exhausted. If the names, places and activities of this summer vacation reflect any other family's summer vacation it was purely incidental or those involved signed waivers not holding us accountable for dragging them down with us.
